DETAILED ACTION

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:

Page 3, lines 18-22: Claim 1 is repeated at the bottom of the specification. It is noted that claim 1 is provided on a separate sheet along with claims 2-6. It is requested that claim 1 at the bottom of page 3 be deleted since claims are required to start on a separate sheet of paper.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gasser (U.S. 4,972,524).

Gasser discloses a pocket protector consisting of an outer pocket fabric 4 and an inner pocket fabric 1 secured along their edges (5, 6) to form a pocket. A reinforcing material 7 is affixed to and runs down the outer fabric of the pocket and is affixed to and runs up the inner fabric of the pocket. The reinforcing material 7 is sandwiched between fabric layers (1 and 4) and therefore contacts both layers so as to prevent the loss of a wallet through the actions of a pickpocket who tries to cut the pocket with a knife.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 2-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gasser (U.S. 4,972,524).

Gasser discloses the invention substantially as claimed above.

However, Gasser does not disclose that the reinforcing material is stainless steel wire.

A review of applicant's disclosure does not reveal the criticality for using stainless steel wire (i.e., why stainless steel is superior over any other material).

It would have been obvious through routine experimentation to replace the metal wire of Gasser with a stainless steel wire in order to provide a predetermined level of protection against a certain cutting implement.

With regard to claims 3 and 4, the reinforcing material is affixed to the pocket with rivets and hooks (15, 16). It is well known in the art that various types of fastening mechanisms are functionally equivalent. Hook and loop, iron on patches, button and buttonhole, hooks and rivets, snaps, stitching and adhesive are a few examples. These fasteners may be used interchangeably depending upon the desired aesthetic effect. Further, the specification does not give an indication of why embroidery stitching or iron on patches would be desirable over another fastener type.

Art Unit: 3765

With regard to claims 5 and 6, the flexible material consists of multiple strands.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Behnke '614, Tucker '994, LeBron et al. '321, Cowden '734, Isoe et al. '891 and '190 and Miller '926 disclose various pocket protection devices.
